

ASIAN LEPROSY CONGRESS

9–13 November 2000
Agra, India

Message from the Organizing Committee of the Congress:

During the 5th International Leprosy Congress held in Beijing, China, in September 1998, there was a strong desire to hold regional congresses in between the quinquennial International Congresses in order to promote more frequent interaction among participants and also to highlight regional issues, problems and achievements. This desire has culminated in the decision to hold, under the ILA banner, the first Asian Leprosy Congress at Agra, India, from 9–13 November 2000.

It is only appropriate that the first regional Congress take place in Asia in view of the tremendous leprosy problem the continent is still facing in spite of the enormous progress made in combating the disease over the past 10 to 15 years.

The Congress, apart from discussing technical and research issues, is expected to focus more on the problems of the common leprosy worker in combating the disease and in helping him or her to find solutions to such problems. This should help provide better interaction between researchers and developers and of technical solutions on the one hand and the ultimate utilizers of such solutions on the other. In order to promote this approach, the organisers of the Congress would like to encourage and to facilitate participation of as many leprosy workers as possible, particularly those involved in leading and organizing the fight against leprosy in the field.

Even though the Congress is called the Asian Leprosy Congress with focus on Asia, it is expected that the Congress would greatly benefit from experiences in other parts of the world and, therefore, would welcome participants from everywhere.

On behalf of the Organizing Committee, we extend our cordial invitation to all those interested in the fight against leprosy to participate in the Congress so that together we can progress toward a world without leprosy, which is our ultimate goal.
